

FILM 240 INTRODUCTION TO FILM AND MEDIA STUDIES

BULLETIN INFORMATION

FILM 240 - Introduction to Film and Media Studies (3 credit hours)

Course Description:

Introduction to the critical study of film and media. Students will closely analyze moving images and develop written arguments about film and media.

SAMPLE COURSE OVERVIEW

This course introduces students to the critical study of film and related media. In the first half of the semester, we will concentrate on developing an ability to analyze—verbally and in writing—the formal elements characteristic of audio-visual media. The second half of the semester will focus on key concepts used to relate art works to one another and to describe what they do to and for audiences. Successful completion of the course will require regular, thoughtful attention to assigned viewing, reading, lecture, and class discussion.

ITEMIZED LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of Film 240, students will be able to:

- 1. Recognize and describe the formal techniques through which various moving-image media create meaning (e.g., editing, cinematography, narrative, sound, interfaces, etc.)
- 2. Analyze specific examples (e.g., film sequences, web pages) to identify the meanings and/or effects these techniques produce in them
- 3. Synthesize such analysis to construct interpretive arguments
- 4. Present analysis and arguments clearly in writing

SAMPLE REQUIRED TEXTS/SUGGESTED READINGS/MATERIALS

- 1. Timothy Corrigan and Patricia White, The Film Experience: An Introduction, 2nd ed. (at campus bookstores). Listed in the Schedule of Classes as "C&W."
- 2. Short essays available on Bb as indicated in the Schedule of Classes. Critically important audio-visual artworks, as indicated in the Schedule of Classes.

SAMPLE ASSIGNMENTS AND/OR EXAM

1. Required Weekly Screenings: Weekly screenings are a requirement of the course. If you cannot regularly attend the group screenings, please take the class at another time. To do well on major assignments for the course you will need to watch some materials several times. Required viewing will be made available at the Reserve Desk at Thomas Cooper Library for this purpose.

- 2. Attendance: You are allowed three absences (excused and unexcused). Each additional absence will result in the lowering of your "Preparation and Participation" grade by one letter, and you will automatically fail the course with 6 absences or more.
- 3. Blackboard: All assigned written work for the course must be submitted through the course website using Blackboard's Safe Assignments feature. You must submit editable word processing documents.
- 4. Preparation & Participation: You are expected to arrive in class ready to discuss the assigned reading/viewing and then to participate in discussion of it. I care what you are thinking, and, more importantly, if you are. When I look at the class, I will be attempting to figure that out. A running tally of how I perceive your participation will be posted in Bb. I may use pop quizzes to measure your preparation.
- 5. Screening Journal: To develop your ability to analyze audio/visual artworks, you must take good notes for each required screening or lab. A journal derived from these notes will sharpen your perception, hone your analytical skills, and provide a foundation for other written assignments in the course. I will discuss my expectations for journal entries more fully in class. In general, you should plan to write a statement of around 500 words in which you precisely and concretely describe elements of the film/media object that are a) relevant to the topic under consideration that week and b) interesting to you. You will be required to submit your journal four times during the semester. Journal entries precisely describing media objects and correctly employing key terms and concepts from the class will receive full credit. Points will be deducted for entries emphasizing plot summary absent concrete details or for entries that avoid key terms and concepts under discussion. Missing entries and entries that suggest you haven't seen the film will receive no credit.
- 6. Midterm Sequence Analysis: In 5-7 pages, you are asked to provide an in-depth analysis of a sequence you choose from one of the films assigned in Part I or Part II of the course. In addition to your prose analysis, you will be expected to include a chart outlining the sequence shot-by-shot. More detailed instructions will be provided in a handout. A first draft of this assignment, including, at a minimum, the shot chart and an outline of your analysis will be due in advance of the paper and will count for 5% of your final grade.
- 7. Final Essay: In 5-7 pages, you are asked to use your analytical skills to make an argument about one of the films from the Part III of the course, drawing on concepts and arguments we encounter in that unit. In advance of the paper, you will hand in a draft of your opening paragraph and outline. Papers will be evaluated on the clarity and persuasiveness of their arguments. More detailed instructions, including criteria for evaluation will be provided in class.
